

Nancy R. Mann, MD

Paradigm Medical Director
Clinical Solutions

Specialty

Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation

Undergraduate Degree

Rensselaer Polytechnic
Institute, 1982

Medical Degree

Albany Medical College, 1982

Internship

Tufts University School of Medicine, 1982

Residency & Fellowship

Tufts University School of
Medicine, 1982-1985

Tufts University School of Medicine, Pediatric
Rehabilitation, 1985-1986

Hedwig van Ameringen
Executive Leadership in Academic Medicine, Program for Women at Allegheny
University of the Health
Sciences, 1997-1998

Boards & Certification

National Board of Medical Examiners, 1983

American Board of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation,
1987

Medical License

Massachusetts, Michigan

Expertise Applied at Paradigm

Brain Injury

Multiple Trauma

Start Year at Paradigm

1998

Dr. Nancy Mann is a Paradigm Medical Director, specializing in traumatic brain injury and neuro-rehabilitation. She is board certified in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation and began her clinical practice in 1985.

Dr. Mann is currently in private practice, focusing on physical rehabilitation for patients with traumatic brain injuries and spinal cord injuries. Dr. Mann has an extensive experience with medical legal evaluations for patients with traumatic injuries.

She was previously chief of staff of the Rehabilitation Institute of Michigan, and associate chair and associate professor of the Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at Wayne State University School of Medicine. Prior to moving to Michigan, Dr. Mann was acting chair and assistant professor of the Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at Tufts University School of Medicine in Boston, Massachusetts, and acting physiatrist-in-chief at New England Medical Center.

Dr. Mann was associate project director for one of the original Traumatic Brain Injury Model Systems funded by the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research (NIDRR). She has published numerous book chapters, articles and abstracts, has been a guest speaker at hundreds of seminars and television shows, and acted as the principal investigator on grants focusing on brain injury and managed care for the physically challenged.

Dr. Mann has been working with Paradigm on brain injuries and multiple trauma cases since 1998.