Anita Jovic is the Director of Operations for Paradigm's Care at Home. She oversees its clinical operations, including catastrophic care. She also conducts continuing education programs on a variety of home health clinical topics, including wound care, catastrophic care, and clinically driven home modification and durable medical equipment programs.

Anita has more than 25 years of nursing experience, encompassing workers' compensation, catastrophic care, and home health. Before joining HomeCare Connect in 2015, Anita was responsible for one of the largest workers' compensation catastrophic care programs in Florida. She previously served as Chief Nursing Officer for a home health agency and as Chief Executive Nursing Officer for a consulting firm that established a respiratory recovery program with several South Florida hospitals. Earlier, Anita was a nurse case manager, a hospice nurse, and a nurse manager for Lexington Cancer Center in Kentucky. She started her nursing career at Orlando Regional Hospital in Florida.

She earned her bachelor's degree in nursing from Eastern Kentucky University and her Master of Business Administration degree from Nova Southeastern University in South Florida.
